Burlington Fairfield Inn & Suites Cleans Up the Environment

BURLINGTON, WA- September 24, 2007- The staff of the Fairfield Inn and Suites by Marriott® Burlington recently participated in a series of environmental activities as part of its efforts to reduce the hotel's environmental impact. The hotel is one of the eleven properties managed by InnSight Hotel Management Group that is focused on implementing environmentally conscious policies and procedures.

The week long series of events included a clean up of the land surrounding the hotel, the planting of three trees on the property and an organized clean up of the Skagit River Park. The park clean up involved the removal of litter in the land adjacent to the river, including such items as glass bottles, clothing, trash, and tires from the riverbank. A recycling contest resulted in the collection of 450 pounds of material during the week.

Other hotel environmental initiatives include the use of Green Seal certified, environmentally sensitive chemicals, a linen reuse program allowing guests to reuse their linens instead of having them washed daily, a recycling program, and the use of recycled products whenever possible.

The Fairfield Inn and Suites by Marriott® Burlington is a 78 room property located at the intersection of Cook Road and Old Highway 99 North at exit 232 on I-5. The hotel opened in May of this year, and during the construction process, one thousand trees were planted in order to buffer adjacent wetlands from the impact of the hotel.
